

WORKING WITH FEDERAL PARTNERS

There are nearly 1.5 million military-connected children in the United States. Military families live in every state, in communities that are home to large military installations, and in communities far away from installations. When child maltreatment occurs in a military family, Department of Defense programs play a critical and often mandatory role. Military families require care that meets their unique needs, including coordination of Children's Advocacy Center (CAC) and Department of Defense (DoD) services. NCA has established seven memorandum of understanding (MOUs) with Military Criminal Investigative Organizations (MCIOs) and DoD Family Advocacy Programs (FAPs) to support CAC-military partnerships nationwide.

Wednesday,
February 19,
2025

12-1PM
CT

VIRTUAL
VIA ZOOM

Free to attend!

Register Here

Participants will increase their knowledge of

1. The seven memorandums of understanding
2. How CAC MDTs can support military families and work with military partner programs.
3. Participants will learn about other opportunities for CAC-federal partnerships, including the NCA-FBI MOU.

CEUs approved for social work, psychology and juvenile court officers.
CLE's approved for legal/judges. Post pending for law enforcement.

Presenters: Heather Provencher, LCSW, and Amber Garrison-Ahmed, LCSW

Dakota Children's
ADVOCACY CENTER

Heather Provencher, LCSW, is Senior Manager for Federal Partnerships at National Children's Alliance (NCA), the national association and accrediting body for over 950 Children's Advocacy Centers (CACs). In this role, Heather works with the FBI, Department of Defense, and other partners to expand CAC access to military families and child victims and witnesses in federal investigations.

Amber Garrison-Ahmed, LCSW, is the Coordinator for Federal Partnerships at the National Children's Alliance (NCA), the national association and accrediting body for over 950 Children's Advocacy Centers (CACs). In this role, Amber works with the FBI, Department of Defense, and other partners to expand CAC access to military families and families involved in federal investigations

Full Bios available at www.dakotacac.org/training